*Empowering Health, Transforming Lives Kokan
NGO's mission for a healthier future.*

The house used to be a place of frustrating silence for me.

But everything changed when I received a hearing aid from Kokan NGO. Suddenly, I could hear the birds chirping, the wind whistling through the trees, and the joyful shrieks of my grandchildren. My home which felt quiet came back to life, filled with laughter. Using a small device and the kindness of strangers, my house is filled with the symphony of life.

Safe Water, Healthy Families

Water is life, but for many rural Indians, it is also a source of disease and death. Without piped water, they rely on unsafe sources and face the risk of waterborne illnesses. Open defecation by 522 million people contaminates water and harms children's health.

We aim to change this grim reality by improving Water, Sanitation, and Hygiene (WASH) facilities in rural schools. We provide safe water, hygiene education, and menstrual health awareness.

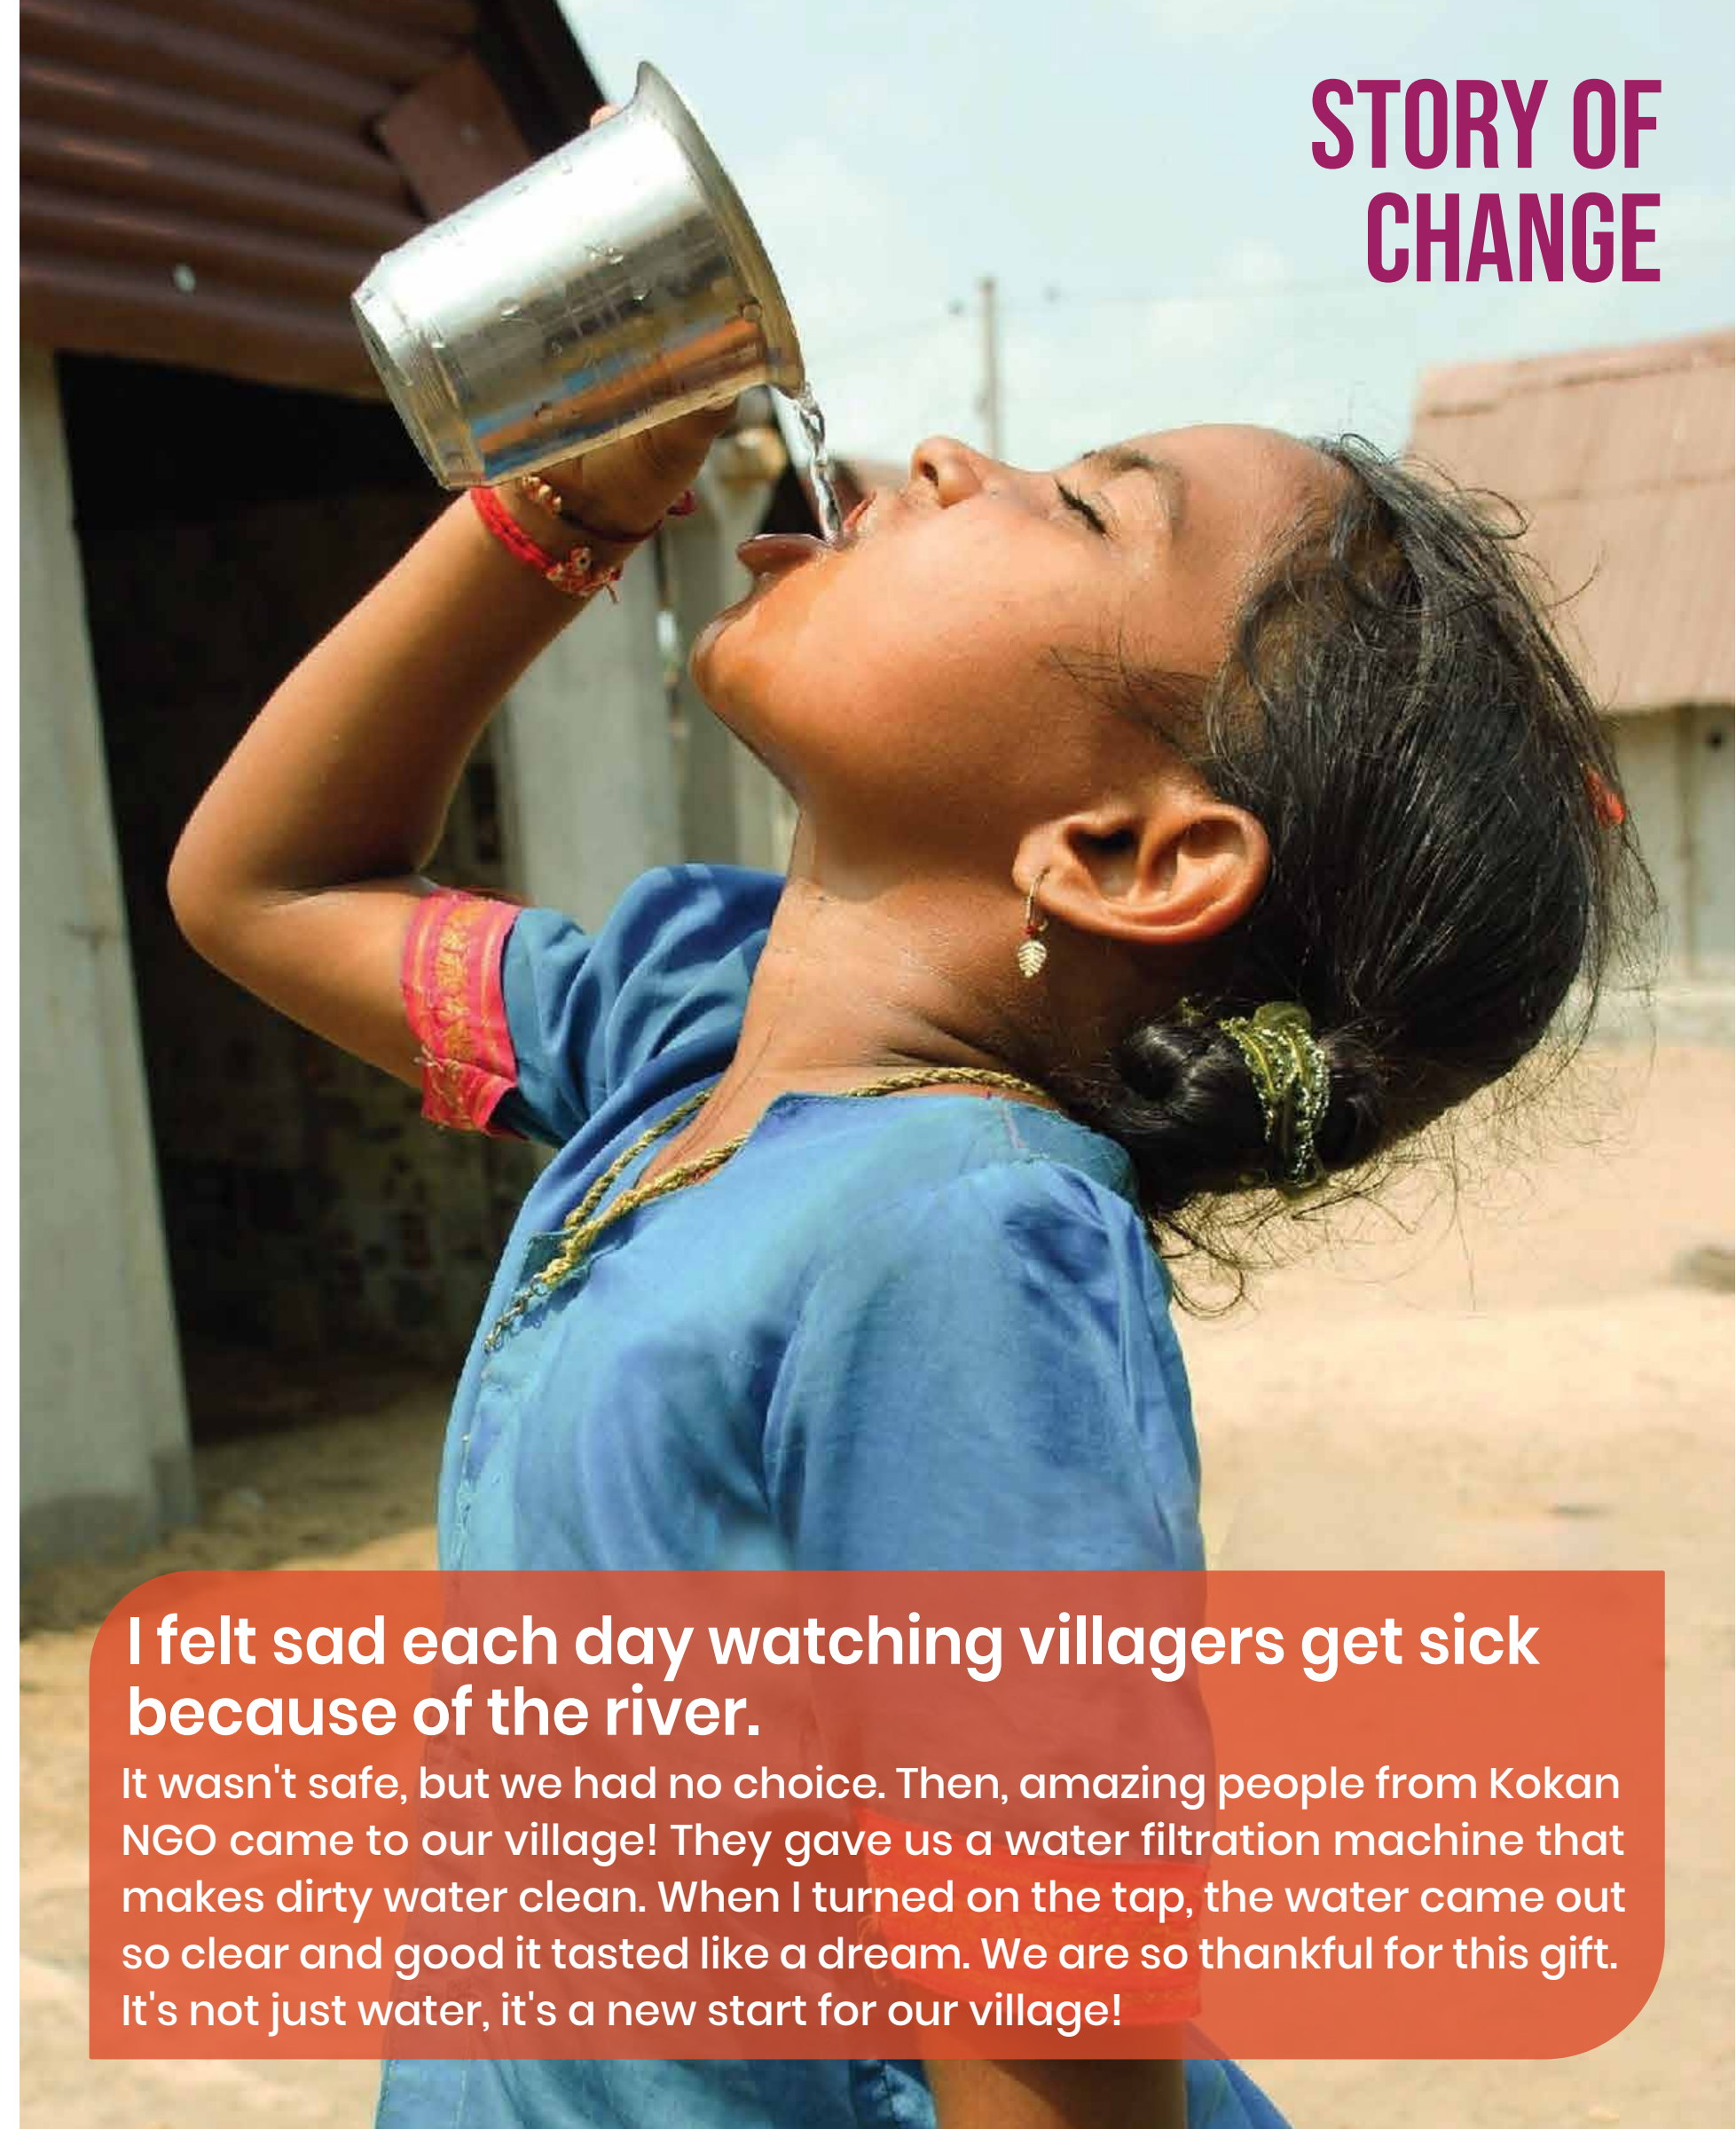

We support sustainable development by installing solar panels in schools and conducting health camps. With the help of CSR partners like ONGC, Nab Samruddhi and Koch, we have touched the lives of over 42068 people in 825 villages in India. Our water ATMs and health camps have boosted the well-being of underprivileged rural communities

How are we different?

- Unique: Includes menstrual health awareness, often overlooked.
- Sustainable: Installs solar panels for long-term, eco-friendly water access.
- Community Impact: Reaches entire villages, not just schools (42,000+ people in 825 villages) potential.
- Collaboration: Works with CSR partners for combined resources.

Health is the foundation of hope. In a healthy mind, we find the strength to dream, and the perseverance to achieve.

STORY OF CHANGE

I felt sad each day watching villagers get sick because of the river.

It wasn't safe, but we had no choice. Then, amazing people from Kokan NGO came to our village! They gave us a water filtration machine that makes dirty water clean. When I turned on the tap, the water came out so clear and good it tasted like a dream. We are so thankful for this gift. It's not just water, it's a new start for our village!

How Our Initiative Changes Lives Of Our Beneficiaries

BEGINNING OF A PROGRAM

Program Initiation: Empowering Rural Women

Objective:

The primary goal is to promote self-reliance among women in rural regions, enabling them to become economically self-sufficient.

Strategy:

Kokan NGO introduces a Silai Course (tailoring course) as a means to achieve this objective.

Scope:

The program is designed to reach out to women in rural areas who are often marginalized and lack access to such skill-building opportunities.

Expected Outcome:

By equipping these women with tailoring skills, the program aims to create a pathway for them to earn an income, thereby contributing to their financial independence.

DURING TAILORING TRAINING

Measurement Techniques:

Participants learn how to accurately measure clients to ensure a perfect fit, covering various body types and garment styles.

Fabric Types and Selection:

Training includes understanding different fabric materials, and their properties, and selecting the appropriate fabric for specific projects.

Drafting, Cutting, and Stitching Processes:

Women are taught the skills needed to draft patterns, cut fabrics precisely, and stitch garments effectively.

Embroidery Skills:

The course covers various embroidery techniques, enabling women to embellish and personalize garments.

Garment Fitting and Alterations:

Participants learn to adjust and alter garments for better fit, which is essential for tailoring.

Additional Training

Sewing Machine Maintenance:

The program includes teaching women how to maintain and repair sewing machines, which is a valuable skill for ensuring the longevity of their equipment.

Personality Development:

The course also focuses on enhancing women's personal growth, communication, and presentation skills.

Teaching Methodologies:

Women are equipped with teaching skills so they can effectively pass on their knowledge to others.

Empowerment Goals

Machine Repair:

Women gain the ability to service and repair sewing machines, adding a skill set to their repertoire.

Training Others:

Graduates are prepared to teach and train other women, supporting a cycle of empowerment and education.

Earning a Livelihood:

The program aims to enable women to earn an income through sewing and tailoring, contributing to their financial independence.

Educational Support:

With new skills and potential income, women can support their children's education, investing in the next generation's future.

Self-Confidence and Economic Status:

The program is designed to boost women's self-confidence and improve their economic status within their communities.

↳ Expansion and Impact:

Training Centers:

Kokan NGO has established sewing training centers in various strategic locations, including Nashik, Karjat, Kasara, Bhiwandi, and Pune. These centers serve as hubs for ongoing education and skill development in tailoring.

Women Empowered:

More than 8053 women have been trained across these centers, marking a significant achievement in terms of outreach and impact on the community.

Tools for Independence:

To ensure that the women can continue to practice and improve their skills, they are provided with sewing machines. This not only aids in their independence but also adds dignity to their craft, allowing them to create and contribute to their households and communities.

↳ Sustained Benefits:

Self-Sufficiency:

The provision of sewing machines is a crucial step in helping these women become self-sufficient, as it enables them to work from home or start their small businesses.

Community Upliftment:

As these women become financially independent, they contribute to the economic growth of their communities, creating a ripple effect of empowerment.

Dignified Living:

The ability to earn and support themselves enhances the women's sense of dignity and self-worth, which is essential for their overall well-being.
